

APPENDIX C

Annotated Bibliography

Below is a list of suggested references compiled over the last three years of our tabletop experiment. They include introductions to archaeology for teachers and students, some potential lesson plan materials, and periodicals and films that you may find useful. It is by no means exhaustive. You will probably find most of these in any good library. If you encounter any good resources not included on this list, please take the time to let us know about them, and we'll include them in future versions of this teachers guide.

Periodicals and Journals

Archaeology Magazine

Bi-monthly (Probably the best periodical for general articles on the subject for non-archaeologists)

Cobblestone & Faces

(Uncertain how often these are published. Both are children's magazines that publish occasional articles on archaeology)

National Geographic

Monthly (Numerous non-technical articles on archaeology, with outstanding illustrations. They have produced a series of TV specials as well, some of them on archaeology.)

Natural History

Bi-monthly (Frequent, well researched, non-technical articles on archaeology, illustrated)

Pennsylvania Archaeologist

Quarterly (This is the excellent quarterly journal of the Society for Pennsylvania Archaeology, most of the articles are Pennsylvania specific, and fairly technical.)

Scientific American

Monthly (Somewhat technical, fairly regular articles on archaeology)

Smithsonian

Monthly (Regular, richly illustrated articles on archaeology)

Videos and Films

Archaeology: Questioning the Past

- 1987 University of California, Berkeley (Outstanding introduction to archaeology. Field footage primarily from California and the Southwest)

Applied Geoarchaeology

- nd Center for Geoarchaeology Studies, University of Texas at Arlington (This is probably the best introduction to soils and archaeological context available on film. Follows the excavations of the River Bend Site in Texas)

Archaeology Series

Films for the Humanities and Sciences, Princeton
New Jersey. (This appears on the Learning Channel on cable TV, it's very well done, there's 20-odd episodes, and it's still in production.)

Assault on Time

nd National Audiovisual Center, Capitol Heights Md.

(A documentary of the destruction caused by looting and unauthorized collecting in North American sites.)

Caracol, The Lost Maya City,

1988 Pyramid Films, Winter Park, Florida (An excellent introduction to Maya civilization and archaeology, through the story of a single excavation in Belize.)

NOVA Series

Coronet/MTI Film and Video, Deerfield, Illinois

(One of the great Public TV series, see especially: The Case of The Ancient Astronauts, Buried in Ice, The Mystery of the Anasazi, The Red Paint People, The Williamsburg File, Secrets of

Easter Island, and Lost World of the Maya.)

Odyssey Series

Alexandria Va. (Most of these date from Public TV during the 1980's, and the archaeology films are outstanding! Seeking the First Americans features our own Dr. Jim Adovasio and Pennsylvania's Meadowcroft Rockshelter, and other films include: The Ancient Mariners, The Chaco Legacy, The Incas, Maya Lords of the Jungle, Myths of the Mound Builders, Other People's Garbage, and Shipwreck: La Trinidad Valencera.)

Out of the Past Series

1993 WQED, Pittsburgh & Cambridge Studios, Boston
 (A great video introduction to world archaeology with some of the archaeologists from Penn State featured.)
